Obituary.
 Mrs. Jessie Avery, wife of G. W. Avery, died on Monday evening April 12, of consumption, in the 43 year of her age.
 Mrs. Avery was a retiring disposition, caring nothing for society. She devoted her life to the interests of family and friends. Her natural kindness of heart made her ever watchful of the comfort and pleasure of her companions and associates, and as a result she was most loved by those who knew her best. She bore her long sickness with patience, and passed away in the blessed hope of a glorious resurrection. * * *

and regretted. Her death was the result of stomach and bowel disorder and she had been a long time confined to her bed. Loving friends, tender hearts, medical science and skill, all failed and when the crisis nearer came, she passed to the beyond as peacefully and calmly as a child going to sleep in its mother's arms.
 Funeral services were conducted at the family residence at 8 p. m. Monday. Every business house in the city was closed and all Lihby was present to witness the impressive ceremonies which were conducted by Rev. George McV. Fisher, of Kalspell, after which his remains were interred in the Old Town Cemetery.

Clark William Dec 12 1897 p6

Obituary.
 William Clark was born in Michigan, January 17th, 1864, and died near Blackfoot, Montana, December 3rd, 1897.
 An account of the sad accident in which William Clark lost his life has already been given. His body was brought to Kalspell Saturday night and on Sunday afternoon the funeral services were held in the Methodist church, and were attended by such a congregation as has not often been seen in Kalspell. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. R. M. Craven, and was followed by the beautiful and impressive burial service of the Masonic order, of which the deceased was a member. The body was taken to Northville, Michigan, for burial, accompanied by his wife, mother, sister and brother.
 The deceased entered the service of the Great Northern sixteen years ago at St. Paul. For the past six years he has been an engineer on the Kalspell Division and the road has had no more faithful or more trusted employes. Twice before he had been at death's door. Five years ago this month he was buried deep in the snow in an accident in the mountains, and was barely rescued before life was gone. Two years later he narrowly escaped when his train went into the Fisher river.

A brave, a gentle, and a noble soul went out when William Clark was crushed to death under his engine. To the friends who knew the thorough honor and honesty of his nature, his life was an inspiration. Not only in the important, but in the smaller affairs of life, he was carefully and scrupulously just and honest. His cheerful and sunny disposition made his acquaintances his warm friends; his associates loved him as a brother. In his character there was no place for anything that was low or mean. His soul was pure, and his life was clean. To know him well was to think better of human nature. He was not afraid of death. But the afternoon before, to a friend who spoke of the danger that attended his calling, he said that he felt no fear, and that he was ready to die at any time the summons came. To his friends there is left a sadness, and to his family a bitter grief, that time may soften, but will not efface. Not to many men does nature give so freely of the attributes of genuine manhood, and in the hearts of those who knew him there is inscribed: "To the memory of William Clark, a true man."

Daly William Dec 10 1897 p6

William Daly, the fireman who also lost his life in the wreck, was a comparative stranger in Kalspell. He had been with the road but a few months, and on account of his retiring disposition had made few acquaintances here. He was married in July last and his sorrowing young wife accompanied his remains to Balm Springs, Missouri, their former home.
 Funeral services were held in the Methodist church Monday afternoon.

Sheldon Mrs A C Aug 27 1897 p6

Death of Mrs. Sheldon.
 From the Libby Montanan.
 SHELDON.—In Libby, Mont. August 15, 1897, Mrs. A. C. Sheldon, aged 61 years and 49 days.
 It is with much regret and with profound sympathy for the relatives of the deceased that the Montanan is called upon to chronicle the death of one so universally revered. Mrs. A. C. Sheldon is among the pioneer families of Flathead county and has formed a wide circle of acquaintances of friends who will all extend their sympathies to the bereaved family. The deceased was born in Oswego county, N. Y. July 2nd, 1836, and removed with her parents to Wisconsin in 1841, where she was educated in the Kenosha schools. She was married to C. A. Sheldon in 1855 and began married life at Okosh, Wis., where she resided until 1868 and removed to Shawano county. Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon removed to the Flathead valley in 1883 and settled upon a farm 10 miles northeast of Kalspell, which same is still a part of the family estate. The deceased was the mother of six children all grown to manhood and womanhood. The oldest, Alvin H. and Herbert A. live at Shelton, Wash., Chester L., S. W. and Chas. A. are residents of Flathead valley, and Mrs. Scott Anderson, the only daughter, is a resident of this place. The deceased became a member of the M. E. church in 1850 and has ever since been an earnest christian worker. Through her untiring efforts along these lines many Sunday schools and churches have been organized and maintained and her services in the christian work will be greatly missed.
