

The saddest news ever heard in Kallispell was the announcement by wire yesterday of the death by drowning of two Kallispell boys and a Kallispell girl at Lake Washington, near Seattle. No details were given but the Associated Press sent out the following account of the tragedy:

Seattle, Wash., May 19.—Three young college students, two men and a girl were drowned in a canoeing accident on Lake Washington today. Another young man barely escaped with the assistance of friends who went to his rescue in a sailboat while a squall was raging on the lake.

The two men were J. P. Goshorn son of Robert Goshorn, editor of the Kallispell (Mont.) Interlake, and a junior at Stanford university, and Glen Jaqueth, son of a Kallispell (Mont.) engineer, and a freshman student at the same institution. The girl is Edith Vogt, a junior in the university of Washington.

These three, with Eugene White, another Washington university student, were on the lake in a small canoe when a sudden squall came up and struck them. The canoe filled with water and sank, leaving the occupants struggling in the choppy waves. White almost succeeded in getting the girl to the canoe, when the two other men threw their arms around him and the four sank. White alone coming up. Three students in a small sail boat made a sensational rescue, picking him up while the boat was going at a high rate of speed.

The Stanford students were on their way home, the university having closed for the year, and were visiting at the home of Miss Vogt, who is also from Kallispell. Miss Vogt is prominent in university affairs. In the same storm several other canoes barely escaped capsizing.

So far as known the bodies had not been recovered and it being the reputation of Lake Washington that it never gives up its dead, much time and effort may be expended before the bodies rise.

A. L. Jaqueth and R. M. Goshorn started for Seattle on the train early this morning. There is much sadness in their families, Joe Goshorn being the only son and pride and companion of his father, Glen Jaqueth the eldest of the Jaqueth family and the one upon whom their hopes had centered. It is stated by home friends that neither of the drowned boys could swim.

Edith Vogt was the daughter of the first county clerk of Flathead county, and her childhood had been spent in Kallispell. A few years ago the family removed to Seattle where they now reside.

THE BELTON VICTIM

Of a Great Northern Freight Wreck Last Sunday Is Shipped East for Burial—Another Wreck.

The inquest on the body of H. Kunce, the head brakeman killed in a freight wreck at Belton, Sunday a week ago, was concluded at Whitefish, Saturday. Kunce was riding on the engine when the accident occurred. Seeing the cars leaving the track behind him he jumped, probably thinking the locomotive would go into the ditch next in order. He was caught by one of the cars as he jumped and sustained injuries which proved fatal in a very short time.

Coroner Sherman delayed the inquest until an opportunity was had to examine the track and roadbed at the scene of the derailment, and it was expected the coroner's jury would refer to the precarious condition of the roadbed when they presented their verdict. But the finding was of the usual colorless variety, finding the man died from causes to the jury unknown.

The remains of Kunce were shipped to his old home at Grand Tower, Ill., Saturday morning, and as a strange coincidence, the forward end of the train was derailed near Midvale, not so very far from the point the brakeman lost his life. Three persons were injured in this wreck of No. 4, Saturday morning at about 6 o'clock. The baggage car, mail car and express car left the track and the cause is probably the same old one of rotten ties and perilous roadbed.

The day after Christmas last Thursday, Chas. Newbowers, a car repairer was accidentally killed on the railroad just east of Summit and across Teton county line. M. C. Phillips and Newbower were sent from Whitefish to repair some cars at Summit. On Thursday the "Dozer" a snow plow and flanger operated by Grant, killed Newbowers, who was on foot going east toward Libec. Men on the engine which drives the dozer, say it was storming in the mountains and on account of snow and wind it was impossible to see ahead. Newbowers was walking along with head muffled to protect against storm and never heard the approaching train and was probably killed instantly.
The accident being discovered, the remains were taken to Whitefish, from which place the coroner was notified. Mr. Sherman was familiar with the neighborhood of the accident and knew it was in Teton county, so telegraphed the coroner of that county. He was indifferent however, and requested Mr. Sherman to conduct the inquest.
Four days after the accident the inquest was held at Whitefish by Coroner Sherman. Jury returned verdict of accidental death and fixed no blame for the homicide.
Chas. Newbowers, the victim, is a brother of Wm. Newbowers, for several years engineer on the Klondyke and who very recently moved to Spokane. The remains have been embalmed and will be held here pending the decision as to their disposal by the weather.

DROWNED IN RED LICKS.
 Particulars of the Accident Which Befell B. F. Newland Last Tuesday.
 The Columbia Falls paper prints the following account of the drowning in Flathead river:
 B. F. Newland, who has been employed on the Hunt-Hollister Lumber company's log drive for the past year, was drowned in Red Lick rapids on the Flathead river, Tuesday. Newland, with two other men, was approaching a log jam on the rapids when a log broke loose, striking and capsizing their boat, throwing two of the men into the river, and he went down stream with the boat and was drowned. His companions swam to shore. Newland was seen several times clinging to the boat in the dangerous waters, but he was doomed, as help could not reach him before he sank.
 The entire drive crew immediately began searching the river for the drowned man. Believing that he was lodged beneath the logs on some of the jams, these were rolled off and numerous trips were made back and forth on the stream within a mile of where the drowned man was last seen. J. A. Hoffdeau, who has had years of experience on the river, offered his assistance and acting on his advice the eddies below where he was last seen were thoroughly searched, and he was soon located in about ten feet of water about a quarter of a mile below where the boat capsized. After several trips over the place where he was seen, he was finally caught by a pike pole in the suspender strap and brought to the surface. Two white scars on each temple were the only marks of bruises and it is believed these were caused after death.

Bob Peterson Is Killed in Mistake for a Deer in Pine Woods Near Fortine---The Horrible Error Is Made by His Hunting Companion George Doll.

A wave of horror and sympathy pervaded the community when it was learned that Major George E. Doll had been accidentally shot and killed by Bob Peterson, who had made the fatal mistake, and it could hardly be accepted that George Doll was the man. He is considered one of the best shots and most experienced hunters in the country. Deer hunting has been his passion and hobby for years. Care was not possible--what then?

At the inquest held Sunday at Fortine, Major Doll, who is absolutely sure shattered over the terrible accident, recounted his experiences on that awful day, about as follows:

Doll reached Herrig's cabin, near Trego, Saturday morning, and Bob Peterson, who was a guard in that forest, agreed to show him some game in the evening. The deer had been seen about dark, using a certain trail several times by poor Bob. Leaving Herrig's in the afternoon they went a mile or so along the old road and then struck into the timber. Doll being stationed by Peterson on a little trail, about 100 yards from the road, and was to stay there and watch until it became too dark to shoot. Peterson went on about a mile farther and took his post on a ridge commanding a large scope of country. The arrangement was that Bob should stay at his post until he got tired or it grew dark, when he was to make his way back and behind Doll's position, signaling to him when it was time to go back to camp.

As the evening shade was falling, it being just about half dark, Doll got his sight of a deer which, before he well shot, dropped over the nearest ridge, which was quite close, watching to see the animal again come in sight, he thought it appeared in the were viewed by hundreds of sorrowing friends yesterday. George Doll is so badly shocked by the harrowing accident that he will remain a few days in retirement until his mental condition improves.

Bob Peterson was just a little over the age of 28, and came to Kallispell up to about a year ago he had been city solicitor and salesman for the grocery department of the M. M. Co., and in those capacities had become acquainted with hundreds of people at their homes, and he was well liked. His health failing he enlisted with the forest guards, after passing examination, and was with Mr. Haines' squad, stationed in the northern division, Lewis and Clark reserve, near Fortine. Very recently Bob had applied to the Armour Co. for a job as salesman. James Busey, of the M. M. Co., who had been interesting himself in securing the position for his old friend, telegraphed him on Thursday Monday (16) for instructions. Poor Bob's report was in body but not in spirit.

His parents reside in Sweden, a brother, Gus, lives at Belt and arrived here last night. Two married sisters are said to make their homes in Marquette, Mich.

The Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow, Wednesday, at 2 p. m. at the Presbyterian church, and a funeral sermon will be preached by Rev. G. M. Fisher. The body will not be interred here, but taken to Great Falls, where other final religious services will be held and burial made in the family lot in Great Falls cemetery.

man just in front, when was not over 50 yards distant, in sparse timber. Without hesitation he raised his automatic rifle and shot twice, a rapid succession perhaps, seeing nothing drop the first time. A fall followed the second shot, and rushing over he was horrified to find a dead man, his friend Peterson, who, in making the detour for camp had unaccountably come upon his companion from the front instead of the rear. In the half light such a mistake would be made, especially when it is remembered a deer had turned in that direction a minute before. One bullet had glanced from the wood of the rifle stock which Peterson probably had over his shoulder, the second and fatal bullet, penetrated his right eye, thence through the brain and out at the top of his head. He died instantly and without a groan.

Crosby Sherman, who was at Columbia Falls Saturday, was notified of the tragedy at Fortine and reached there Sunday. He went to Herrig's place, and having empaneled a jury, inquired into the circumstances of the death. The witnesses were Major Doll, Fred Herrig and Roscoe Haines. The verdict was death by accidental shooting. The remains were brought to Kallispell Sunday night and having been properly arranged in a casket at Sherman's undertaking parlor,

Funeral services of the late Robert Peterson were largely attended Wednesday. A magnificent offering of wreaths and flowers fairly covered the casket, indicating the universal liking and affection for the young man. The remains were taken to Great Falls, accompanied as a mark of honor by Roscoe Haines, a chum of deceased, and Gus Peterson, the brother.

LAST SAD RITES.

Body of Unfortunate Young Flathead Forest Ranger Laid to Rest in High Land.

The Great Falls Tribune of Dec. 21, says:

The body of Robert Peterson, the young forest ranger, who was accidentally killed last week near Trego, in Flathead county, was laid to rest yesterday afternoon in Highland cemetery after impressive services at George's undertaking rooms, conducted by the Rev. C. T. Carlson of the Swedish Lutheran church. Mr. Peterson was well known in this city, having been in the employ of Strain Bros. for several years, and also having worked at Sand Coulee, near where he had a ranch.

The pallbearers were J. W. Stoddard, Sterling McGibbon, William Roth, Edward Deschloss, John Thorson and John Davidson. A large number of floral tributes were contributed by the many friends of Mr. Peterson. Among these were a wreath from Clerk's union No. 57, a wreath from Mrs. Samuel Wells, a cross from Mr. and Mrs. Bert Chelquist and Mrs. Christine Johnson, an anchor from Mr. and Mrs. George Chelquist, a bouquet from the Missoula Mercantile Co. and four bouquets from the employees of the Missoula Mercantile Co.

Among those present at the funeral was Roscoe Haines of the forestry service. Mr. Peterson was with Haines' squad in the Lewis and Clark reserve near Fortine. A brother, Gus Peterson, of Belt, was also present at the funeral.

A five-year-old son of Gale Phillips, janitor of high school, died yesterday of diphtheria. The residence is quarantined.

Killed by Falling Tree.

Jean Leon Pourroy is the romantic name of the swamper at camp No. 2 of the Homers Lumber company, who was killed Wednesday last by tree crushing him. Jean was a Frenchman just from the old country. Discharge papers from French army recorded his age as 35. He has been in America but a few months. He was working with a number of French and Canadians at Camp No. 2, none of whom have very good command of English. A dead tree torn down by one felled by the axman, caught Pourroy and pinned his crushed and mangled form to the ground. The remains were taken care of by Undertaker Sherman, and after Crosby Sherman had decided an inquest unnecessary, arrangements were made for the funeral. The dead man will be buried at Demeraville.

The funeral of Riley Reed took place last week at the Yeoman hall, a large number of his friends attending the services and following him to the Fairview cemetery where he was gently laid to rest, Monday, Oct. 10, 1907.

Frisco, the Piano Player, Shoots His Wife Full of Holes at Four O'Clock in the Morning and Turns Gun Upon Himself With Deadly Effect

A double tragedy, bloody and intensely dramatic, took place on the streets of Kalamazoo Wednesday morning about 4 o'clock. A man, Frisco Renerro, and Lila Ryan, his wife, although not bearing his name, were the chief actors in the sanguinary scene. Renerro, who was a Mexican or Spaniard, was a piano player and hanger-on of disreputable houses and women. He had been in Whitefish recently, although a few months ago employed at one of the resorts on the west side. He was state's chief witness in the trial of Arlie Mathews, for the murder of her companion, Frank Safford, at Whitefish last summer.

Frisco and his woman came to town on the trial and had been celebrating the woman especially. Frisco was in the heat of spirits the night of the murder; was at the variety show and around several resorts until shortly before the murder was committed, and seemed extremely hilarious. He took Lila and a companion to supper at the restaurant and as they were strolling along the street he suddenly fired two shots, but hit no one. Lila laughed in her half drunken state and said he was a poor marksman. The other woman slipped away, but Frisco stopped a moment to argue with his woman and get her to go home with him and behave herself. He was insanely jealous and the woman had been making a jealous play on a bartender in town which probably brought the climax.

Frisco fired two shots into her body as she was hurrying along the high sidewalk and she then attempted to escape, but fell. A small crowd gathered and as the woman endeavored to tell of her condition and begged to be taken to the hospital that she should not die on the street, Frisco, who had calmly loaded his gun, stepped up close to the prostrate woman and sinking to his knee fired a bullet through her head. As she dropped over he deliberately shoved his own hat back and placing the muzzle of the revolver to his temple, blew his brains out, and falling across the body of his wife, expired without a groan. The woman lived an hour or two afterward but never had a chance of recovery.

Practically nothing of the history of Renerro or his wife is known here. It is said they had been legally married. They were both probably in the neighborhood of 30 years of age. Coroner Sherman took care of the bodies, an inquest was held on them Wednesday and they have since been laid out for burial.

In Happy House
The little three months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. J. Riley died this week of black measles and was buried from the Catholic church yesterday.

DROWNED AT PORTER'S CAMP

Bert Rosbury, a Good Swimmer, Sinks in the Lake While Companions Hurry to Rescue.

Coroner W. P. Sherman was notified Sunday night that a man had been drowned in the lake at Porter's camp on the reservation, off Pinley point. Five men witnessed the drowning, Tom Burns, Jack Allen, Polk and two others, so the coroner considered an inquest unnecessary and the body was brought to Kalamazoo last night and a telegram sent the dead man's people in Michigan asking what disposition should be made of the remains.

Bert Rosbury was the name of the drowned man; he was about 22 years old and had been working at Porter's camp since it was established this spring. The day of the accident he had offered to go out to a drift of logs in the lake and bring in a dry log for firewood. He took a boat and rowed out to the jamb, selected his log and took to the water, pushing the boat a head of him with the log. The men on shore were casually watching him when they heard him give a yell and sink. Burns jumped into a boat and pulled out to assist him while other men ran along the shore to get closer to the point the tragedy was taking place. Burns took Polk into the boat and by this time the struggling man had reappeared and sank for the second time. When they reached the place the body was seen lying on the bottom in 12 feet of water. Polk attempted several times to raise him by diving, finally succeeding. He had been in the water not to exceed ten minutes when they got him ashore and tried by every known means to resuscitate him, but vainly.

Rosbury was a good swimmer and a daring boatman being thoroughly at home on the lake and his companions ascribe his death to heart failure, as he was not cramped when brought to shore. He had been in the water, fooling with the logs quite a while before he drowned.

The remains of Bert Rosbury, the man drowned at Pinley Point, early this week, was shipped last night by Undertaker W. P. Sherman, to Deerperville, Mich., where the parents of the dead man reside.

Frisco fired two shots into her body as she was hurrying along the high sidewalk and she then attempted to escape, but fell. A small crowd gathered and as the woman endeavored to tell of her condition and begged to be taken to the hospital that she should not die on the street, Frisco, who had calmly loaded his gun, stepped up close to the prostrate woman and sinking to his knee fired a bullet through her head. As she dropped over he deliberately shoved his own hat back and placing the muzzle of the revolver to his temple, blew his brains out, and falling across the body of his wife, expired without a groan. The woman lived an hour or two afterward but never had a chance of recovery.

Practically nothing of the history of Renerro or his wife is known here. It is said they had been legally married. They were both probably in the neighborhood of 30 years of age. Coroner Sherman took care of the bodies, an inquest was held on them Wednesday and they have since been laid out for burial.

In Memoriam.

Marie, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Schultz, of Somers, died June 20, at 3 a. m. of dyptheria.

Two limp little hands on an innocent breast,
O'er a heart that is still and forever at rest;
Two cold little feet that will ne'er go astray,
And a soul that the angels have taken away.
The touch of your fingers we never may feel,
Nor hear your sweet voice in a plaintive appeal;
Our hearts are all weary and dreary today;
We long for the love that is taken away.
Your bright eyes are closed, we may hearken no more
To the sound of your pattering feet on the floor.
Nor list to your laughter, nor watch you at play;
The angels have taken our darling away.
Taken away, taken away;
Taken by angels away.

—A Friend.

Some weeks ago she was stricken with typhoid and later other complications set in. About a week ago she was reported as dying but the relapse was followed by such improvement that up to the last hour strong hope was had of her ultimate recovery.

Mrs. Sheldon leaves a husband, Bert Sheldon, to mourn her loss, and many friends, but no children. She was a past officer of the local Lodge of Rebekahs who will probably have charge of the funeral which will be held from Sherman's undertaking parlors at 1 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, in interment at Fairview cemetery beside the only son of deceased.

KILLED A FRIEND

One Italian Laborer on Railroad Carelessly Causes Death of a Companion at Vista.

A fatal accident occurred among the Italian laborers on the Great Northern at Vista, just west of Whitefish, last Thursday. The great slide to the rock cut at that place had called for an extra gang to clear the road bed and several cars of Italians were at work on the track. During an interval of recreation, a bunch of the men were stading around in one of the boarding cars shooting from the side door at a mark, using a small caliber rifle. One of the men, an old fellow named Diorgo Albigo had the rifle in his hands and was just about to shoot when the gang boss appeared walking in such direction that he might have been endangered by a bullet sped that way. One of the men called out excitedly to Diorgo to take care and not shoot the boss. He took the gun from his shoulder still with the hammer raised and with the weapon in hand was gesticulating among the crowd when the rifle was accidentally discharged with close to the face of Francisco Tenerelli and the bullet penetrated his left temple. The wounded man was hastily transported to the hospital at Whitefish, where he soon after died, not having ever regained consciousness after he was stricken. Coroner W. P. Sherman having been notified went up to Whitefish that evening, but after investigating was satisfied the death was caused purely by accident, and decided no inquest necessary.

Francisco Tenerelli, the dead man, was but 19 years of age. He had recently been brought into this section with a gang of contract laborers from Chicago. Diorgo Albigo was also from Chicago and is a man about 56 years of age. He was very much grieved over the result of his carelessness and there was not the slightest intimation by any of the gang that there had ever been any but friendly feeling between him and his victim. Tenerelli was buried at Kalspell, Sunday. The gang not being on duty the railroad company disclaimed any jurisdiction over the affair.

The Body of George Todd Brought In by Coroner Sherman From Kootenai River

SWAN OLSON IN CUSTODY OF SHERIFF

Accused of Putting Strychnine in the Batter Cakes Todd and Hensley Ate for Breakfast--J. S. Hensley, Another Victim, Recovered After Twelve Hours of Agony--Is Here to Give Testimony

Coroner Sherman and Deputy Sheriff Ingraham returned Wednesday night from their trip to Troy and Sylvanite to investigate the poisoning of two men noted in a telegram from Laing, of Sylvanite, last week. At Troy they hired a team and went into Sylvanite, taking with them Mr. Clay, a forest ranger, who guided them. From Sylvanite to the Hensley homestead, where the poisoning took place is 29 miles over a foot road, and the party went horseback. At Hensley's cabin George Todd was found, or rather his dead body, which had to be carried out on a pack horse to Sylvanite. Swan Olson, accused of the crime of poisoning the food which Todd and Hensley ate, resulting in the death of the former, was taken into custody and brought back by the officers. Olson is considered insane but says he knows nothing about this particular poisoning, although he claims he has been suspicious of getting poisoned for the past four years. His hallucination is that the settlers in that part of the reserve are trying to drive him out to get his claim.

J. S. Hensley, who is a man under 40 and employed by the forest service as a packer on the Kootenai, said he and Olson, the suspect, were apparently good friends. Hensley had been on his homestead about 18 months. George Todd, the dead man, was a frontier trapper, he lived at Sylvanite and also had a homestead. He was 49 years old and had been in this state for several years, coming originally from Missouri.

On Wednesday, Nov. 29, he had been trapping in the hills and happened to be at Hensley's place overnight. In the morning Ole Olson dropped in and offered to assist in making breakfast, but went away before it was served. Hot cakes being part of the meal, Hensley ate four or five but Todd swallowed only one and both men began to have pain in the bowels and as it kept getting worse they concluded they had been poisoned and naturally suspected Olson. Hensley lost no time in melting lard for an omelet and mixing up warm water and salt. He drenched himself copiously but could not induce

Todd to take the antidote. Both men were down and out. Hensley says that day did not seem long to him, he was unconscious part of the time, but remembers Todd calling piteously and moaning pitifully. At about 12 o'clock that night Todd died, and Hensley, fearing to remain alone with the dead, managed to reach his horse and ride to Sylvanite where he told Laing and had him wire the sheriff.

The coroner's inquest occurs this afternoon. Mr. Clay, the forest ranger, and Hensley, are witnesses. Olson will also be put on the stand.

Swan Olson, the suspect, has been in this part of the state a dozen years. He once had a saloon at Sylvanite and is considered batty on the subject of poison.

Trueman

Edward

THE DEATH OF ED. TRUEMAN

Edward Trueman has obtained his change of venue from all earthly tribunals. Saturday he died at the residence of his son-in-law, Julius Dyer, Fourth avenue east and Twelfth street. Since early fall the old man had been failing rapidly and after the judge had allowed his change of venue to Sanders county, County Attorney McKeown expressed himself as satisfied that he would never again face an earthly court to answer to the charge of killing McCabe.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the Presbyterian church, interment being made in Conrad Memorial cemetery. Edward Trueman was one of the pioneers of the Flathead and at one time farmed a part of the townsite. He has been engaged in stock ranching in Smith valley for a number of years and was quite successful until he got into that trouble with his neighbors over range rights, which resulted in the death of McCabe, over two years ago. Since that time Trueman has been on trial for his life and in the expense of lawyers' fees and litigation his entire property was dissipated.

Verhage

son of P E

29 Mar 1907 p8

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Verhage died this week and was buried in Conrad Memorial cemetery, Wednesday.

The saddest news ever heard in Kalispell was the announcement by wire yesterday of the death by drowning of two Kalispell boys and a Kalispell girl at Lake Washington, near Seattle. No details were given but the Associated Press sent out the following account of the tragedy:

Seattle, Wash., May 19.—Three young college students, two men and a girl were drowned in a canoeing accident on Lake Washington today. Another young man barely escaped with the assistance of friends who went to his rescue in a sailboat while a squall was raging on the lake.

The two men were J. F. Goshorn son of Robert Goshorn, editor of the Kalispell (Mont.) Interlake, and a junior at Stanford university, and Glen Jaqueth, son of a Kalispell (Mont.) engineer, and a freshman student at the same institution. The girl is Edith Vogt, a junior in the university of Washington.

These three, with Eugene White, another Washington university student, were on the lake in a small canoe when a sudden squall came up and struck them. The canoe filled with water and sank, leaving the occupants struggling in the choppy waves. White almost succeeded in getting the girl to the canoe, when the two other men threw their arms around him and the four sank. White alone coming up. Three students in a small sail boat made a sensational rescue, picking him up while the boat was going at a high rate of speed.

The Stanford students were on their way home, the university having closed for the year, and were visiting at the home of Miss Vogt, who is also from Kalispell. Miss Vogt is prominent in university affairs. In the same storm several other canoes barely escaped capsizing.

So far as known the bodies had not been recovered and it looks the reputation of Lake Washington that it never gives up its dead, much time and effort may be expended before the bodies rise.

A. L. Jaqueth and R. M. Goshorn started for Seattle on the train early this morning. There is much sadness in their families, Joe Goshorn being the only son and pride and companion of his father. Glen Jaqueth the eldest of the Jaqueth family and the one upon whom their hopes had centered. It is stated by home friends that neither of the drowned boys could swim.

Edith Vogt was the daughter of the first county clerk of Flathead county, and her childhood had been spent in Kalispell. A few years ago the family removed to Seattle where they now reside.

A man named Wheeler, a county charge, died at the poor farm, November 26. He has some friends in Libby and the body will be held until they can be heard from.

ACCIDENT WAS FATAL MAN BLEEDS TO DEATH

Hours After His Injury J. H. White Reaches Kalispell Almost of His Last Gasp.

About 3 o'clock yesterday morning J. H. White, a laborer employed by the Great Northern in this section, was mortally injured near Marion, D. T. He has been shipped from the hospital here after a long and painful illness. White, who was American born and between 25 and 30 years of age, came from North Dakota, with some time ago. He was unmarried, and has a brother and sister living in Minn. He was a member of the Western society and also carried an accident insurance policy. It seems that White got up at an early hour Monday morning and went from the bunk car to the rear of the train where he was standing clear of the snow, when the string of cars was shunted by a work train engine. He was thrown under the wheels and his left leg severed, while his left arm was also caught and stripped from the bone, all the arteries being severed. He was picked up by his companions as soon as his predicament was known, and such rude assistance as they knew offered. His mutilated leg was bound up so that much of life blood drained from the injured man in a tavern. A few minutes after reaching Kalispell, about 9 o'clock, the man died. Dr. Taylor being unable to resuscitate him after the great loss of blood.

Coroner Sherman took charge of the body of White, which is now at the morgue, while the coroner has gone to the scene of the accident to investigate and consider the necessity of an inquest.

Mr. O. E. Thomas, chief clerk at the U. S. land office, received a letter Wednesday announcing the death of his daughter, Mrs. Wilkins, who was living on a homestead near Libby. Mr. Thomas did not even know of her illness and the news came as a great shock. He left for Libby last night to make arrangements for the funeral. Mrs. Wilkins has several young children who are left motherless and will probably be taken care of by their grand parents.

FUNERAL TOMORROW

The funeral of Mrs. E. H. Wilkins will be held at the Presbyterian church, Saturday afternoon. Cortege will start from the Thomas home at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. E. H. Wilkins was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Thomas of this city. She died of nervous prostration after about a week's illness. She was brought in from her ranch south of Libby, Tuesday of this week, for treatment at Libby hospital, but died the following morning. She leaves a husband and four children in her immediate family to mourn her loss the smallest of the children being a four-month-old baby.

Mr. F. J. Witzigman died at the Northwestern hospital Thursday night. He was brought there in a critical condition by his brother Wm. Witzigman, who will accompany the remains to his old home in Clinton, Iowa, where interment will be made.

JOSEPH K. WOOD DEAD AT NOME.

Former Missoula Attorney Succumbs After a Stroke of Paralysis.

J. A. Miles of Missoula, has received a telegram from his daughter, Mrs. Joseph K. Wood at Nome, which contained the shocking news of the sudden death of her husband from paralysis.

Joseph K. Wood was for several years a practicing attorney in Missoula, coming from Dakota. He was an able lawyer and, though not particularly diligent, was successful in his practice. He went from Missoula to Alaska in the early days of the gold excitement and became United States district attorney. He had been, before coming to Missoula, a close friend of Alex McKenzie in Dakota and when the contempt cases, involving McKenzie and Judge Dubose came up, he was connected with them.

After the hearing of these cases at San Francisco Mr. Wood came to Missoula and remained several months before returning to Alaska. This time he went to Nome and prospered, according to all reports. In his profession he was successful to a marked degree and he became interested in several profitable business ventures.

Mr. Wood leaves a widow and two children, a daughter 7 years old and a son who was 1 year old last March. It is supposed that Mrs. Wood will return to Missoula as soon as it is practicable.

The shocking news of the painful death of Mrs. Ross Young surprised the city this morning. Whether by accident or design, Mrs. Young swallowed an ounce of carbolic acid at her home about 8 o'clock last evening. Physicians were summoned, and for hours every effort was made to preserve life, but the anguished spirit fled at 5 o'clock this morning.

The circumstances fail to indicate aught but accident responsible for the tragedy. Mrs. Young and her sister Bessie Masterson, were preparing supper for Ross Young and his partner, Geo. Garcia, who were expected to reach home before 8 p. m. The various household duties had been performed by Mrs. Young and her sister when the men arrived. Mrs. Young in her hurry to get things done became a little excited and a clothesline upon which some towels were strung, pulled down. She made an impatient remark, went from the kitchen into her own room and slammed the door. Only a moment elapsed before Ross heard her shriek his name. He rushed to her and in a moment realized the trouble. Doctors were hastily summoned and a nurse, but their solicitude was unavailing.

The funeral of Mrs. Ross Young was held yesterday from the Presbyterian church. An immense throng of sorrowing relatives and friends filled the church. Services were conducted by Rev. W. J. Spire, and a long procession followed the remains to Conrad Memorial cemetery where the mortal remains of a sweet and gentle woman were laid away until the "last trump sounds."
