MRS. W. L. BACKHUS

The death of Mrs. W. L. Backhus occurred at the family home at 7 a. m. Sunday, after an illness of about a week's duration. Mrs. Backhus had not been in her usual form for about a month past, altho her condition was not considered at all serious. On Sunday, August 29, she was quite febrile, and toward evening retired to her room thinking a rest was all that was necessary to restore her to her usual health. Monday morning her condition was first considered serious, and about noon she sank into a deep slumber, from which she never roused, gradually growing weaker until Sunday morning when she quietly passed away.

Mary E. Carlson was born in Penance, England, Nov. 16, 1840. At the age of 13 she came to the United States with her parents, locating in Racine county, Wis. In April, 1859, she was married to William L. Backhus, who, with her only children, Mrs. Emma Ingalls and Mrs. C. A. Cooley, all of Kallispell, survive her. Seven years ago they came to Kallispell and have made their home with the Cooley family on Second avenue west.

The funeral was held from the residence yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Green of the Episcopal church, and largely attended by friends and members of the Eastern Star of which Mrs. Backhus had long been a prominent and active member. Interment was made at Conrad Memorial cemetery.

COLUMBIA FALLS GIRL DROWNED
 Two pleasure seekers, P. J. Burns, 24 years old, a metal worker living in the business building, and Maud Parker, 20 years old, a chambermaid at the Pacific hotel, were drowned at Liberty lake yesterday afternoon when the boat in which they were rowing sprang a leak and sank, says Monday's Spokesman-Review.
 The other occupants of the boat, Howard Smith and Miss Moats, also a chambermaid at the Pacific hotel, were saved from a similar fate with difficulty. Miss Moats lives with her mother at 6644 Superior street. Miss Parker, whose parents live at Columbia Falls, Mo., had been rowing with Miss Moats. The party was watching the motor boat race.
 Neither of the bodies has been recovered. The lake will be dragged today.
 W. O. Parker, manager of T. S. Harmon & Co., furniture dealers, of this city, proved a hero in saving the lives of Smith and Miss Moats. Parker lives at the San Marco apartments. Parker put out some in his launch and by hard work succeeded in saving the survivors.
 Miss Parker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Parker of Columbia Falls. Her mother, Mrs. Parker, is the manager of the Columbia Falls Lumber Co. He was the mother of the dead girl, parted nearly three years ago. At the time of her parting the daughter came to this city to make her home and has lived with Mrs. Moats since that time.
 Miss Moats is the daughter of Mrs. Joe Moats. She is but 17 years old. A few months ago a brother of Miss Parker was drowned in the North Fork, their boat being swamped while with a party of engineers, the swollen stream was being navigated. His body nor that of a companion lost at the same time, have ever been recovered.

BURIAL OF MRS. CONROW

That was a beautiful and impressive service at the Catholic church, Saturday, when the relatives and friends of the late Mrs. M. B. Conrow assembled to do their last act of homage to the beloved departed one. Father O'Farrell delivered a touching and tender tribute to the memory of deceased, at the conclusion of which there were few dry eyes in the audience. Requiem mass was sung by the choir and as a special observance the Ethos quartette delivered that divine melody, "It is Well With My Soul." Miss Helen Kavanaugh impressively and beautifully gave the solo "Face to Face." The auditorium of the church was packed and many stood in the vestibule and on the porch during the service. The Altar society, of which Mrs. Conrow was a member, attended in a body and there was a large representation from various fraternal organizations with whom the Conrows were identified. Then there were many who followed to the C. E. Conrad cemetery and with bowed head and downcast eye, heard the final invocation ere the clogs of frozen earth solemnly proclaimed ashes to ashes and dust to dust.

Donaldson Frank

6 Apr 1909 p1

HIS STORMY LIFE ENDED

Frank Donaldson, one of the pioneers of the Black Hills and eastern Montana, and who has been in the Flathead for the past 12 years, died Saturday night, at his ranch near Dayton. Frank was as capable as most of the old stage drivers and broncho buster of the last century, but had lived so many long and weary years without responsibility that he soon made ducks and drakes of all money that came to his hand. Every dollar that he had with him a friend could borrow and keep and Frank would not only share his grub and blankets but would divide his last plug of catin' tobacco with a man he liked. He had been stage driver, male skinner and broncho buster, prospector and homesteader, and some months ago proved up on a pretty good timber ranch near Dayton, but from which he sold the timber and spent most of the proceeds in his usual reckless manner. The make-up of men these days has changed much from the wild years of '77 when the gold excitement brot the pilgrims to the Black Hills. The recklessness generated in such surroundings never departed from Frank Donaldson, but, to side-step the obvious platitude, he was a friend to everybody excepting himself, and will certainly be missed and mourned by many around Dayton. Frank was about 55 years of age, spare and small, with big blue eyes and a fierce moustache but he was gentle and charitable when he had anything to give. His body was brot up from Dayton and after being properly confined was shipped to Prosper, Minn., where he has relatives living.

He was an Odd Fellow and affiliated with the local lodge.

His wife and his three daughters, Stella, Catherine and Gladys, were with him at the last. The funeral is to be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Presbyterian ritual being used and the Odd Fellows taking charge of the body and commencing the services at the grave, but at 10 o'clock today Mr. W. Railroad physician for the Yellowstone division and there began the very extensive acquaintance which made his name so familiar in eastern Montana. In Kalispell the doctor employed a large and lucrative practice. He had many noble and forceful qualities and his friends were very loyal and yet he had enemies, as what man of individuality married but no children blessed his union with Miss Annie Gallinger who he wedded about five years ago. He was an Odd Fellow, and affiliated with the local lodge of the order, who took official charge of his funeral obsequies.

Hundley Ben

SAD DEATH OF HUNDLEY
ANOTHER POPULAR RAILROAD MAN RESPONDS TO ROLL CALL.
Conductor Ben Hundley, who had charge of a work train at Essex, was killed late Saturday afternoon by being crushed between cars at Fielding at about 6:45 p. m.
Hundley had his train in on a side track at Fielding when train No. 401 came along and broke in two places when it stopped. In order that the thru freight might not be delayed any more than necessary, Hundley took his engine to assist in chaining up the cars with broken draw bars.
He went in between the cars which were about five feet apart and was in the act of removing a knuckle from the draw bar when the train was suddenly backed up, catching his body between the two draw bars, crushing it horribly thru the abdomen on the left side.
He was dragged in that position a short distance when the cars parted and his body dropped across the rail. Brakeman Rozine, who was with him showed him back in the center of the track so that he would not get run over. The train was stopped in half a car length and Hundley was taken out from under the center of the car.
He lived one hour and five minutes after the accident and was conscious to the last, but did not say anything until just before he died, when he said: "I guess I'm all in."
As soon as word of the accident reached here, Supt. W. R. Smith took the first available engine standing at the round house, huffed out an engine crew of the first men he could find and with Assistant Superintendent W. Carswell for conductor, he took his private car and hurried to the assistance of Hundley with medical aid as fast as it was possible.
Hundley was so badly injured that when they got to Columbia Falls the report was there that he had died, so they turned back. The remains were brot in that night on No. 1 and placed in the morgue, where Coroner Wegener took charge and prepared them for burial.
The funeral services were held at the house under the auspices of the Masonic lodge, of which he was a member, and the body was taken to Kalispell for burial, on a special train which left at 1:30 this afternoon.
Hundley was also a member of the Elks, Knights of Pythias, Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, all of which were represented at the funeral and contributed some very beautiful floral pieces.
A wife and two children are left to mourn his death and the sympathy of the whole community is extended to them in this hour of bereavement.—Whitefish Miner.

16 Jul 1909 p3

The coroner's jury which inquired into the accidental death of Ben F. Hundley, at Whitefish, returned a verdict that the engineer received a back-up signal by a party unknown, supposed to be brakeman, causing Conductor Hundley to be crushed while chaining up a bad order car.

DEATH OF M. A. F. JONES

Ed Staples came back this morning from the Big Meadows, where he went with Coroner Waggener to recover the remains of M. A. F. Jones, the superannuated printer, who was found dead in his cabin by neighbors, Sunday. Staples says the old man's chest was badly crushed as if from a heavy weight falling upon him, and his face was also bruised and bloody and there was a bloody cloth by his chair with which he had vainly attempted to stanch the life stream. Investigation about the place indicated clearly that the old man had been caught by a falling tree which he had chopped off close to the house. The tree, a tall spruce, had lodged in a dead top, and it appeared that in his efforts to bring this to the ground the old man had been crushed by a big limb. He had evidently dragged himself to the cabin and was able to sit back in the chair where he died, probably Saturday night. On Sunday a man driving along the road sent a boy up to Jones' cabin to get an ax to cut a fallen tree which obstructed the road. The dead body was thus discovered and news of the tragedy reached Coroner Waggener, who at once acted.

The funeral of the old printer and pioneer took place this afternoon, interment being made at Demersville cemetery.

M. A. F. Jones came here from Butte about 10 years ago. As long ago as 1883 he was a compositor in the Butte Miner office, but only worked a few days at his trade after he came to Kallispell, that being when the Bee was first installed. He was about 75 years of age and was a native of Illinois, in which state he now has a brother living, somewhere about Decatur. His mother only recently died at his brother's home. In 1902 the old man squatted on a ranch in the Big Meadows above Tally lake and now included in the forest reserve and he has faithfully made his residence there, in hopes of eventually proving up and getting title to his homestead. He was helped out in various ways during the winter by Jerry Phillips who fixed him out with a shed for shooting gallery and a cabin during the winters he spent in Kallispell. He died possessed of nothing except the equity in his homestead which he acquired as a squatter, a few books and old clothes.

THE LAKE ICE WAS ROTTEN MAN AND HORSE WENT DOWN

Milton Jones, Crossing the Flathead Lake on Horseback, Loses His Life.

Word was sent over the telephone wire this morning from Somers by M. M. Cruser telling of the tragic ending of a trip on horseback across the frozen surface of Flathead lake. Milton Jones was drowned near Dayton, while crossing the Big Arm of the lake. It is supposed that the ice gave way letting horse and man down into the icy waters, and that the man was mortally wounded by the straggling horse, as the message stated Jones was not dead when his body was rescued from the lake by some Indians wandering nearby. The unfortunate man was journeying from his place near Somers to Polson yesterday and the three days of thaw and soft weather had made the ice rather unsafe, but Jones did not realize it until he went thru to his death. The remains were brought up to the Jones home today. Milton Jones was quite well known here and in the lower valley. During the navigation season he was head engineer on the steamer Wasco. W. J. Pierce of Kallispell is a relative. He was not married.

The funeral of Milton Jones was held yesterday morning, services conducted by Rev. Seymour Williams in the hall, which was filled with the many friends who came to pay the last respects to this young man who met his untimely end at Dayton on Thursday afternoon.

DROWNING OF MILTON JONES

A correspondent at Dayton sends The Bee a more detailed account of the cause of death of Milton Jones, on the lake near Wild Horse Island. The remains were sent to Kallispell and taken in charge by the Odd Fellows, who conducted his funeral. The account of the death is written from Dayton the day of the occurrence, Thursday.

Milton Jones, of Somers, who left his home on Wednesday of this morning to visit his friend, Nick Comers, in Polson, passed Tripp's place about 10 a. m. discussed with Tripp the advisability of crossing on the ice to Wild Horse Island, thence to the main land, which crossing would save him ten miles distance. Tripp advised Jones to go around, and when he left Tripp's he stated he probably would go around the road, but later he changed his mind and took across the ice toward Wild Horse Island; he was seen by an old Indian, Williams, leading his horse but finally went out of sight between the islands. Later Jones came back to Williams and some time afterward Williams heard Jones halloo, and he started to go to him, a distance of about one and one-half miles. He found Jones stark naked, lying on a raft composed of a log and a plank, strapped together with his belt. He was chilled, but with a snort of life. Williams waded Jones on the ground and wrapped him in his, Williams', blanket and coat; he then struck across the country to Dayton, a distance of four and one-half miles, and notified C. E. Proctor who got together a party and at once went to the scene of the accident, but when they arrived Jones was already dead of cold and exposure.

It seems that Jones' horse had broken thro the ice and that Jones figured that by making an axe and a raft, he could cut a channel from where shallow water, and lead him ashore. He built a fire on the shore, took off his clothes so as to have them to put on dry when he returned; he then floated out and cut about 100 feet of channel but probably got chilled and started to go to shore, but had stayed out too long and became paralyzed so that he could not get off his raft. The rescue party found his clothes and the fire just as he had left them. They brought the body and clothing back to Dayton and a messenger rode up to notify his parents and friends. His father and brother, accompanied by Joe Murphy of Somers, came down and on Friday morning, they, with others, went out and the saddle off the horse that was still flailing in the little hole into which he had broken. The accident happened between Cromwell and Wild Horse Islands.

DEATH OF MRS. E. E. KELLEY

A telegram reached Kallispell yesterday announcing the death of Mrs. E. E. Kelley at Santa Monica, Cal., from a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. Kelley had not been well for some time and in the early winter she went to California, Mr. Kelley following the first of the year. Favorable reports have been received recently and the news was unexpected to her large circle of friends.

Mr. Kelley started this morning for Kallispell with the remains.

MRS. E. E. KELLEY FUNERAL WILL TAKE PLACE THURSDAY

Mr. E. E. Kelley and son, Lee, arrived last night from a long and arduous journey, having brought the remains of Mrs. E. E. Kelley from Santa Monica, Cal., where she died last week, back to her old home for interment beside the children she buried here nearly 17 years ago. But one son, an only child, now survives to share the sorrow of the husband and father.

Funeral services will be held in the Presbyterian church, at 2 p. m., Thursday, interment being made at C. E. Conrad Memorial cemetery.

It is now just six months to a day since Mrs. Kelley went to California hoping the change in climate would benefit her health. Until the stroke which caused her sudden death she was apparently improving and recovering in the mild air of Santa Monica, and Mr. Kelley joined her there a few weeks ago to prepare for the home-coming, which, alas, was not expected to be of the mournful and heart-breaking kind.

The remains of Capt. James Kerr were taken to Bay City, Mich., for interment, accompanied on the journey by his son Casper J. Kerr, his wife and daughter. It is understood that Mr. Kerr will fill a position on the Klamath, upon his return to Montana, the Kerr estate being an equal owner with Capt. Gene Holze, in the steamer.

The seven-year-old daughter of Mr. C. M. King, died last Tuesday of diphtheria. Mr. and Mrs. King came here last September and are now located at Brown's hotel. They have the sympathy of the entire community.

VERNON LARTER FATALLY INJURED

While assisting his father in repairing a motor boat at Whitefish Friday afternoon, Vernon Larter's skull was fractured by a blow from the crank of the engine. The same missile struck his father, Bob Larter, the well known engineer, and broke a rib and caused other injuries. At the immediate time of the accident and until half an hour later, it was not the father who was the one most hurt, and Vernon was helpful in getting his parent to the hospital, and under the doctor's care. The lad had been considerate of his mother in the route to the hospital from the river, taking care that she should not see them and become alarmed. When the boy mentioned how his eye was pinching him, the doctor made a hasty examination and ascertained that his skull had been crushed and that he was in a critical condition. Being placed upon the operating table he died while chloroform was being administered. He had bravely borne up under a mortal wound, spurred thereto by anxiety for his father, and when his excitement subsided and the tension loosened the brave, lovable boy's life went out in a flash. Mr. Larter was painfully but not seriously hurt.

Vernon was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Larter, he was just approaching his 14th birthday, and was a model boy. He was very fond of machinery of any kind, seeing a boat mechanic, and had been allowed to run and take care of a motor boat for years. He was adored by his parents, who feel their affliction bitterly.

The funeral took place Sunday, the funeral cortege coming from Whitefish on a special train, a large number of friends and neighbors testifying their sympathy in making the sad journey. Interment was at C. E. Conrad Memorial cemetery, after services at the Presbyterian church.

THE SUDDEN DEATH OF W. H. MOSES

W. H. Moses was found dead in his bed Saturday morning.

Friday Mr. Moses had complained of a slight bilious attack, and on the evening of the same day, while Mr. Ford was sitting with him he declared he had entirely recovered. Mr. Ford left him at 9 o'clock p. m. About an hour afterward his housekeeper, Mrs. Vinton, who was sleeping up stairs heard him groan several times.

It was Mr. Ford's custom to call around early every morning to see how Mr. Moses was, and, going as usual, found the door locked and could not arouse him. Intuitively he knew that the end had come. He summoned the corner and found Mr. Moses cold and silent in the last long sleep, peacefully at rest. It was the opinion that he had passed away shortly after retiring, death coming from natural causes.

Mr. Moses was born in Ohio in June, 1827. He came here about 12 years ago and during his residence here he and his wife, who died in December, a year ago, made many staunch friends. After his wife's death he felt he had little to live for and had made all his plans and preparations for his journey into the great beyond.

The funeral was held Sunday from the undertaker's, Rev. Green performing the last rites. He was buried in the Grand Memorial cemetery by the side of his faithful wife.

The will of W. H. Moses was filed in the district court last Saturday. It was written by Mr. Moses himself, and dated the first day of last September. Reed Link 19 Jan 1909 p1

DEATH OF L. H. REED

The sad news of Link Reed's suicide, while deranged from pain, illness and over-dose of drugs, was the topic of conversation Saturday.

L. H. Reed, who was a well known young business man, had recently resigned his position with Condon's grocery, to share in the business of B. P. Knapp's dry line. About the 4th of January the starting of the cold weather and was taken down sick, his home being with the B. P. Knapps. Mr. Knapp and his family, including J. G. Thompson, nursed and cared for Link Reed, who was as a son in the house, until nearly all of them were worn out and only the night before the young man's unhappy and the Erik, of which order he was a member, had employed Ross Van Wagner to aid the Knapps in their care of the sick man. Knowing Reed to be possessed of a suicidal mania, it had been the rule never to leave him alone at any time. About 11 o'clock Saturday morning, Reed, who appeared quite rational and was fully dressed except his coat, abruptly left his room and noise and stepped into the bath room. Van Wagner became alarmed when after a few minutes he neither unlocked the door or responded to calls, and alarmed the house.

Mr. Thompson was in the house and Mr. Knapp had just arrived. With scarcely any delay Knapp called and then broke in the door, assisted by Thompson and Van Wagner, and they found Reed almost expiring, a nasty gush in his jugular, made by a sharp penknife indicating the method of his madness. He had evidently attempted to drive a hat pin into his temple but was not successful and had recourse to the grosser method of cutting his throat.

Recognizing the young man's extremely a physician was hastily summoned while the home folks did everything that was possible to stay the seeping life blood, in vain. Despite all that could be done, which was so very little, Link Reed breathed his last before the stroke of noon.

The deceased was 23 years of age; he came to Missouri about 12 years ago, and was intimate with Dr. James; two years later he moved to the Flathead, residing with few interruptions in Kalispell, and always with the B. P. Knapps. His health has not been good and he has suffered from excruciating headaches, which almost invariably made him delirious. Mr.

Reed had been married, when but a boy, but was divorced and his wife, a resident of Essex, Ill., was married again several years ago.

He has always reminded his friends that Kalispell was his home, not Essex, Ill., and had Mr. Knapp's pledge that he should be buried here in case he should happen to die first. A brother-in-law is expected from the east tonight or tomorrow, after whose arrival final arrangements for the funeral will be made by the local lodge of Elks, and it is stated the funeral will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. from Elks' hall.

Sanford, well known to Lake McDonald campers and visitors as the care taker for Geduhn's camp at the lake, succumbed last night to an apoplectic stroke, breathing his last about 24 hours after he was stricken. DEATH OF MRS. TALBOT.

A nose unexpected telegram conveying sad news of the death of Mrs. Jose Lovina Talbot, at Columbia Falls, was received today in Kalispell. She died at 1 o'clock this morning, having finally succumbed to a malady which had been sapping her strength month by month until it finally conquered and claimed another hostage for death. Ever since the early summer Mrs. Talbot had been a confirmed invalid. Mr. Talbot had given up all his regular business in Butte to be with her and the remainder of the family at Shellrock, but they had not realized the shadow of the grim reaper was so close, until the dictum of the great specialist who came from Baltimore to study her case and confer with her local physicians. Death was even nearer than he had surmised, altho after consultation he gave the family no hope of ultimate recovery. At her bedside when she died were all of her remaining family, her husband, James A. Talbot, her daughters, Mrs. May Neidshofen and Miss Talbot.

Her remains will be laid away in the family vault where, also, already too many of her loved ones are at rest.

Mrs. Jose Lovina Talbot was born in Macon county, Missouri, February 7, 1859, being nearly 51 years old when she died. Mr. Tinkel has been practically an invalid ever since his wife's death about three years ago, and he went to Los Angeles last fall to spend the winter as has been his usual custom. His daughter, Mrs. Webster, had intended spending the winter with him but her plans were changed and his sister, Mrs. Halley, remained in Los Angeles with him after his son Fred had brought him safely there. No immediate anxiety was felt for him by his family and friends, and the telegram received by Mr. Webster, yesterday, was distinctly a shock.

The remains will be brought to Kalispell and laid beside his dear wife in their family reservation at Conrad Memorial cemetery. Owing to the distance and difficulty of travel it is not probable the funeral can be held before Sunday, or Monday, February 15. POISON CAUSED DEATH OF MRS. ANN WAUGH

The Sudden Death of Aged Ranch Woman
Arouses Suspicion--Contents of Stomach
Analyzed--Coroner's Jury Fixes Arsenic
as the Cause of Death

An inquest upon the body of Anne Waugh was held under Coroner Waggoner's direction yesterday, at city hall. After investigating the facts, examining witnesses and considering the statements of Drs. Macdonald and Albritton as to the presence of arsenic in the stomach of deceased, the coroner's jury rendered a verdict that Mrs. Waugh came to her death thru poison, when, how or where administered or by whom being to the jury unknown.

Mrs. Waugh was 63 years of age and lived with her son, Rolla D. Waugh on a ranch near La Salle. About three weeks ago Rolla D. Waugh died, there was no physician attending nor was burial permit given and he was laid away in an obscure grave. From gossip of the neighbors suspicion has been aroused as to the cause of the death of Rolla Waugh, and the coroner has determined to exhume the remains and properly investigate the cause of death.

Jim Waugh, a relative of deceased, and said to be the sole heir, lives in Kalamazoo and has interested himself in the investigation and since foul play is suspected has suggested to the authorities that a detective be employed to ferret the matter out, he himself offering to bear the expense. As there is no question of the strychnine being present, either murder or suicide may be attributed, and if the remains of Rolla Waugh disclose the presence of poison in the viscera, the theory will be double murder.

The funeral of Mrs. Waugh took place at 1:30 this afternoon.

The body of R. Waugh, who died the first of January was exhumed and an examination made of his stomach to find whether there was evidence of poison. The suspicions were without foundation, however. The young man died without having a physician and two weeks after his mother passed away. A coroner's jury found evidences of poisoning and an investigation was ordered. James Waugh, the surviving son, has authorized $100 of the estate to be used to clear up the mystery.
