Tribute

To Fannie Louise Corbett

Mrs. Corbett, more familiarly known to her friends and neighbors as "Aunt Fan," had been a patient sufferer from heart disease over a period of years.

She was a noble, inspiring Christian wife and mother, and loved her neighbor as herself. She lived in her house by the side of the road and was a friend to all who passed that way. To go to the Corbett home was for many like a trip home. She was generous, cheerful, tactful, humorous and possessed the greatness of heart and soul to confess wherein she had been wrong, knowing that she too possessed feet of clay. She was understanding and tolerant, her influence was far-reaching, she having devoted much time to the furtherance of her Heavenly Father's business.

Sunday morning found her in attendance at church in Coram, after which the family attended a community picnic where she met many loved friends. Just at sundown her spirit heard her Lord say: "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Her last words were spoken for the Master as she slipped quietly and safely into the arms of the Savior.

She will be missed greatly, but her passing this way has brought God and Heaven nearer.
